In February 2019 Health Education England published the Topol Review [7]. Dr Eric Topol brought together a remarkable cross-disciplinary team of experts, including clinicians, educators, engineers, ethicists, and economists alongside leaders in digital healthcare development.

We have gathered some of the original authors who played a key role in delivering this ground-breaking report to discuss progress on the findings two years on.

Watch the sessions below, the first between some of the Topol Review Board members and the second with members of the project team and Clinical Fellows who worked on the review. The films are also available on YouTube [8].

The Topol Review 2 years on: Roundtable discussion with Topol Review Board Members ? part 1

Chaired by Professor Lionel Tarassenko with Professor Berne Ferry, Professor Rose Luckin, Elizabeth Manero (who participated in the Topol Review as a member of the Health Education England Patient Advisory Forum), Harpreet Sood, Patrick Mitchell and Henrietta Mbeah-Bankas.

The panel introduce themselves and summarise progress that has been made against the findings of the Topol Review over the last 12 months including how Health Education England have incorporated over 60 of its recommendations into their work programmes.

Length: 16:00

The Topol Review 2 years on: Roundtable discussion with Topol Review Board Members ? part 2

Part 2 of a discussion chaired by Professor Lionel Tarassenko with Professor Berne Ferry, Professor Rose

Luckin, Elizabeth Manero (who participated in the Topol Review as a member of the Health Education England Patient Advisory Forum), Harpreet Sood, Patrick Mitchell and Henrietta Mbeah-Bankas.

It has been said that, following the pandemic, remote monitoring is here to stay - the panel discuss the benefits of remote monitoring for patients and staff.

Length: 35:52

The Topol Review 2 years on: Roundtable discussion with Topol Review Board Members ? part 3

Part 3 of a discussion chaired by Professor Lionel Tarassenko with Professor Berne Ferry, Professor Rose Luckin, Elizabeth Manero (who participated in the Topol Review as a member of the Health Education England Patient Advisory Forum), Harpreet Sood, Patrick Mitchell and Henrietta Mbeah-Bankas.

The panel discuss how genomics has been given a greater profile over the pandemic, and whether this has led to a greater acceptance of it by the public. They also talk about developments in the areas of machine learning and AI.

Length: 29:56

The Topol Review 2 years on: Roundtable discussion with Topol Review Clinical Fellows ? part 1

Chaired by Sue Lacey Bryant with Henrietta Mbeah-Bankas, Dr Jes Maimaris, Dr David Cox, Dr Matt Hammerton and Dr Sangeetha Sornalingam.

The panel introduce themselves and each reflect on their own experiences of how the recommendations have played out since the publication of the review in the areas of AI and robotics, genomics, digital medicine, and medical education. What has the impact of digital technologies been on mental health services and around health equalities and inequalities?

Length: 30:52

The Topol Review 2 years on: Roundtable discussion with Topol Review Clinical Fellows ? part 2

Part 2 of a discussion chaired by Sue Lacey Bryant with Henrietta Mbeah-Bankas, Dr Jes Maimaris, Dr David Cox, Dr Matt Hammerton and Dr Sangeetha Sornalingam.

The panel discuss turning educational opportunities into real-life learning and the importance of evaluation. COVID-19 has obviously been a huge factor influencing digital transformation but what other external factors have come into play, either to help or hinder progress in taking forward the Topol recommendations?
