UK Emergency Medicine Fellowships

Health Education England, supported by the Royal College of Emergency Medicine [6] (RCEM) and the Society of Emergency Medicine India [7] (SEMI), is running a programme aimed at recruiting International Training Fellows in Emergency Medicine to complement our existing trainees, consultants and specialty doctors. Each post is fully integrated within a specialty team in one of a number of Trusts within the three Regions supporting the high-quality provision of patient care in Emergency Departments.

These posts provide excellent training and service opportunities for doctors with varying career aspirations.

The scheme is fully endorsed by RCEM and SEMI to give international doctors established UK-based training with a view to taking their skills back to their home countries on completion of a three year earn, learn and return contract.

Previously focused on placing candidates with the East of England Region the Programme has now been expanded.
