

“I’m now ready to focus on my career again.”

Working with you to help allied health professionals and healthcare scientists return to practice

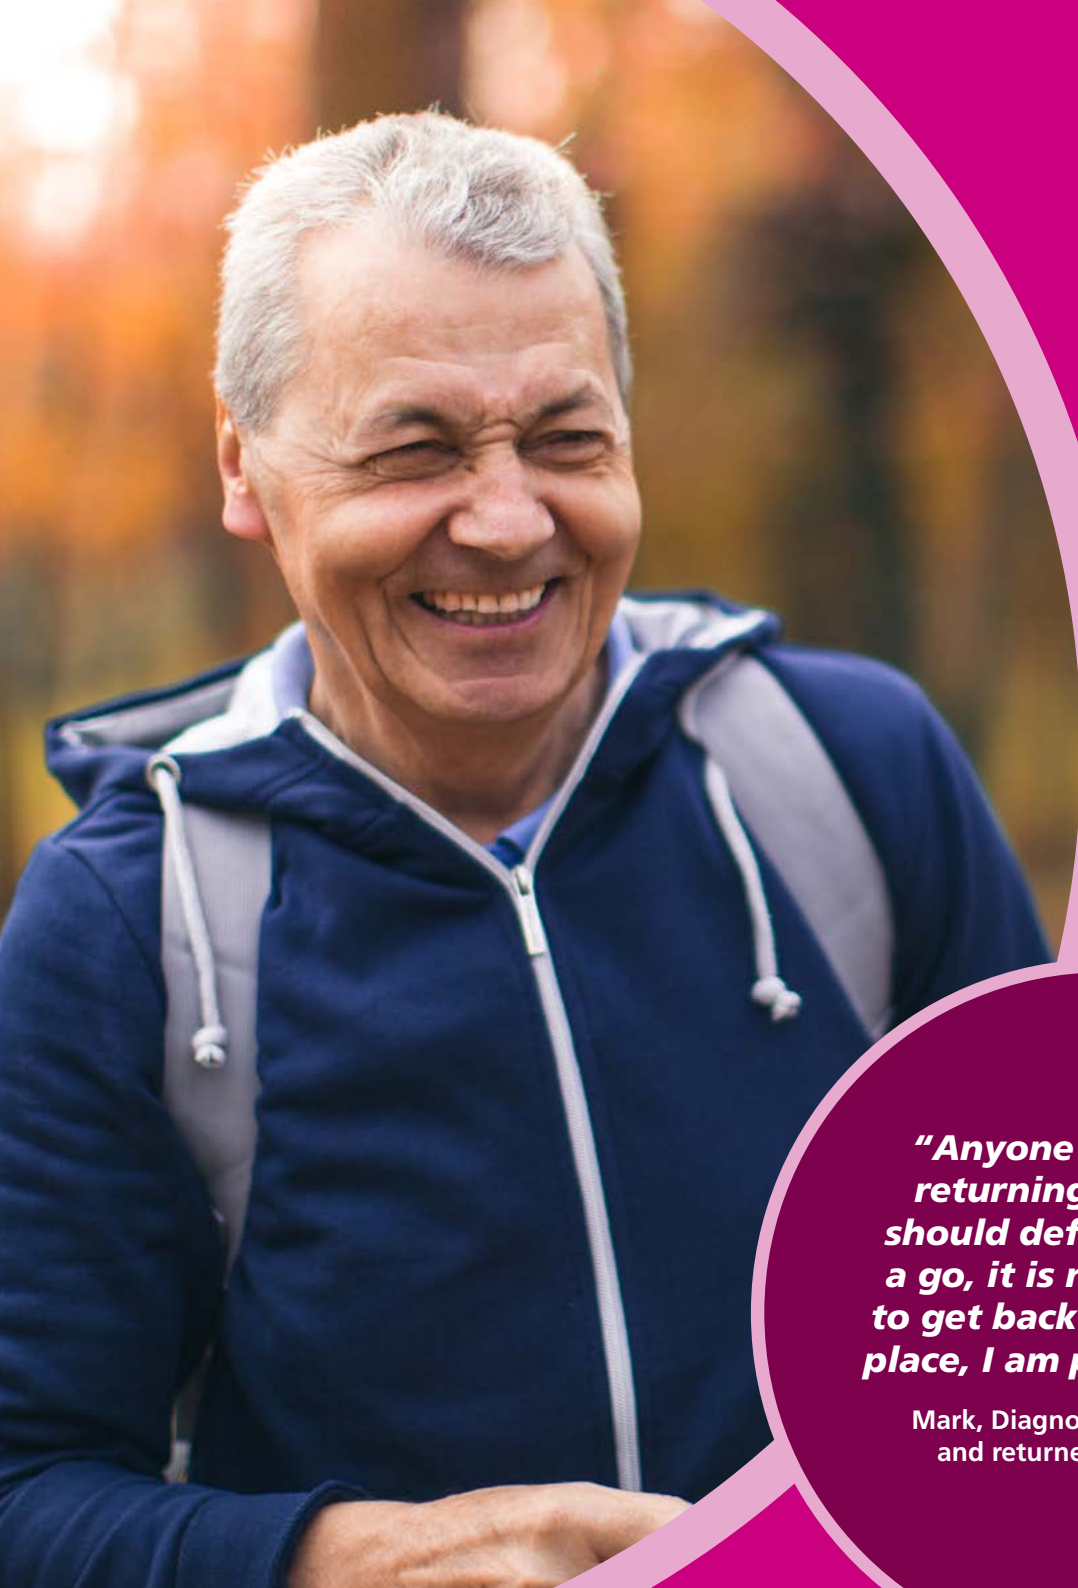

Health Education England’s Return to Practice (RtP) programme has been developed to help AHPs and healthcare scientists that have left their professions, to re-enter and gain their HCPC registration.

The programme was piloted in the East Midlands during 2017 and includes the following elements:

- Guidance on the RtP process for AHPs and healthcare scientists
- Signposting of information
- Online resources <http://bit.ly/2BkINrH>
- Joint working with professional bodies, NHS Trusts and universities to improve the process, information and availability of placements
- Funding to cover out of pocket expenses for eligible returners
- Ongoing support and advice during their journey
- A press and social media campaign to attract new returners

“Now I want to explore my career again.”

AHP RtP partner organisation pack

This pack of resources has been put together so that you can be part of the programme and provide RtP support to members of your profession.

The pack contains:

- Campaign materials with guidance on how to use them
- Suggested Twitter and Facebook posts for you to use
- Case studies from a range of AHPs, covering a range of different personal circumstances
- Short videos about personal RtP journeys

“Anyone considering returning to practice should definitely give it a go, it is never too late to get back into the work place, I am proof of that!”

Mark, Diagnostic Radiographer and returner after 29 years

AHP RtP partner organisation pack

If you have any questions about the materials, or suggestions for other materials which you would find useful, do get in touch.

Contact our National Return to Practice team:
R2PAHP-HCS@hee.nhs.uk

www.hee.nhs.uk/ahp-hcs

“I’m ready to use my caring skills again.”