

Could you be a Health Ambassador for Primary Care?

Would you like the chance to inspire and encourage young people to think about a career in healthcare?

Are you passionate about your work and want to inspire young people to join the NHS?

What is a Health Ambassador?

Health Ambassadors act as role models to young people, offering them the opportunity to find out about jobs and career paths in the NHS. You will have enthusiasm, commitment, confidence, the ability to identify with young people, a passion for your work and the wish to inspire others to achieve their full potential

What's involved for Health Ambassadors?

As an ambassador you will be involved in working with local schools and colleges. This may include giving presentations in a school setting with groups of students; attending a careers session offering guidance and advice on the NHS and the different career opportunities; and helping to facilitate workshops and work experience programmes. Information is available at <http://www.healthambassadorseast.org.uk/>

If you are interested in becoming a Health Ambassador contact Sallyann Woodthorpe, Widening Participation Officer, Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Clinical Commissioning Group email sallyann.woodthorpe@nhs.uk or phone 07773 244301

